

Beginning Now...

C.S. Lewis once said, “You can’t go back and change the beginning, but you can start where you are and change the ending.” Every baby is a symbol of hope and innocence, created by God for a specific purpose. I am pro-life because every child has a right to live. They deserve the chance to chase dreams, stumble, get back up again, and achieve their goals. If a baby is aborted, the light of life is vanquished without even leaving a footprint on the earth. Left behind are regrets of what will never be, a hollow reminder of the sin of this world, and a stolen life that will never be experienced. The gift of a child is unlike any other and for someone to treat abortion as trivial and unimportant is horrendous because abortion undermines every bit of human decency and ultimately supports murder. When confronted with this truth we must ask ourselves what we are going to advocate for and does this honor Christ. Abortion is contrary to everything Jesus has taught us through the bible and his life so will we choose to honor and support a “choice” that opposes our beliefs? You must ask yourself what is important to you and what you base your life on; what defines the person you are and what morals are the foundation on which you build your life. What legacy will you leave behind for others to see; when you look back on your life will it reflect Christ and will the people who choose to follow in your footsteps see a person who stood up for what was right in the face of opposition? A synonym for abortion is that of murder and as Christians one of our commandments is, thou shall not kill so there should be no question as to whether or not we support abortion. As C.S. Lewis’ quote alluded to the beginning is in the past so focus on the present and make the future something to be proud of by choosing life.
